After losing her parents in a traffic accident as a child, MITA gains the ability to see spirits. Haunted by the constant presence of ghosts and the grief of her parents' absence, the young Mita shuts herself off from the world and immerses herself in music, holding tightly to her father's guitar.

Eight years later, now 17, Mita begins working part-time at a musical instrument shop. There, after constant bickering with the music spirits possessing the instruments—HI, JANGMI, BEAT, and ZIZI—she eventually joins forces with them to form the Ghost Band.

Mita and the Ghost Band make their debut performance at the “Ghost Festival,” and Mita uploads the concert video to the nation's largest music platform, Spotlike. With a sound unlike anything in mainstream music, the Ghost Band captivates the public and creates a sensation overnight, turning Mita into an instant viral star and “hot liker.” For the first time, she begins to believe that her music can earn the love of the world and lead her to the dream stage: the Spotlike Top 5 Concert.

As Mita's rise sends shockwaves through the K-pop market, the CEO of Miracle Entertainment, the country's largest entertainment company, attempts to stop the Ghost Band's meteoric success by exposing Mita's past. Overnight, the public becomes consumed with the revelation that she is a cursed orphan who sees ghosts, was bullied, and dropped out of middle school. The scandal leaves Mita emotionally shattered. Though she nearly gives up on life, she overcomes her despair with the help of her spirit friends and a fellow singer-songwriter her age, ENHO, and continues her musical journey.

Despite the CEO's relentless sabotage, the Ghost Band's songs continue to win the hearts of the public, and Mita rises to the Spotlike Top 6, finally securing a coveted place in the Top 5 concert lineup. But on the morning of the concert, Mita is kidnapped by the assistant to Miracle Entertainment's CEO. He offers her an exclusive contract with the company—a lifelong, inescapable agreement that would condemn her to endless exploitation as the human data source for the AI singer ROA.

Just before Mita is completely absorbed into Roa's AI system, the Ghost Band—her only true companions—rescues her and destroys both the CEO's scheme and the Roa AI system. Though devastated by the dark truth behind the entertainment industry, Mita cannot abandon the music she loves most. Together with the Ghost Band, she steps onto the stage of the Top 5 concert.

Meanwhile, the CEO, enraged by the destruction of his most valuable asset, the Roa AI system, is unable to contain his fury toward Mita. During the climactic highlight performance of the Top 5 concert, the singer Roa—thought to have been destroyed—reappears in the form of a beautiful yet colossal AI robot, violently disrupting Mita and the Ghost Band's stage.

To protect their dream, Mita and the Ghost Band fight the giant AI robot and emerge victorious. In the process, Mita bids farewell on stage to Hi, the spirit who stood by her as both friend and bandmate, sending him peacefully into the spirit world. With that, the Ghost Band delivers its final performance, bringing their journey to a beautiful and emotional close.
